Alamo Head Injury Association

The Alamo Head Injury Association (AHIA) is comprised of survivors of brain injury, their parents and spouses, other family members and friends and rehabilitation professionals in the San Antonio area. In addition to helping survivors of brain injury and their families cope with the life-altering changes that follow a brain injury, the organization provides a forum for networking, identifying resources and providing education about the rehabilitation process.

To find out more about AHIA, please visit our website www.alamoheadinjury.org

University Health System

University Health System is one of the most prestigious healthcare systems in South Texas. Owned by the taxpayers of Bexar County, University Health System is a nationally recognized academic medical center, consistently recognized as a leader in advanced treatment options, new technologies and clinical research. University Health System's outpatient facilities provide primary care and specialty outpatient care throughout Bexar County.

University Hospital operates 500 acute care and specialty beds and serves as the lead Level I trauma center for a 22-county area of South/Central Texas, is the primary teaching hospital for the UT Health Science Center at San Antonio, and is a leader in Organ Transplantation.
